

There's a big change coming...

The information on this DVD will help you navigate it.

Two new laws enacted in 2009 will change the way that Texas schools adopt and order instructional materials.

The Instructional Materials and Education Technology Division of the Texas Education Agency is responsible for implementing those changes. TEA's John Lopez and Chuck Mayo unveiled the first look at these changes for textbook coordinators at TCAT's Annual Conference.

Now you can have a DVD copy of that presentation. Whether you're seeing it for the first time or reviewing it after attending the session, this video contains critical information you need to know – whether you're a textbook coordinator, curriculum specialist, education technology staffer or a superintendent.

TEA is refining the policies over the next year, but this DVD gives you the basics, so that when change comes, you'll be ready.

Order your DVD today.
Because the world is changing fast.
